Haebaru

Located in the center of the southern region of Okinawa's main island, the town of Haebaru is surrounded by six other municipalities and is the only town in Okinawa that does not face onto the sea.

Located inland, it has long served as a transportation hub, with the Naha Airport Expressway and trunk roads running through the town.

Learn about peace at the Haeburu Cultural Center

Haeburu was the first town in Japan to designate a World War II site, the Okinawa Imperial Army Hospital Haeburu Bunker, as a cultural property, making it a pioneering advocate for peace education.

A visit to the Haeburu Cultural Center exhibits, together with the related DVD and Okinawa Haeburu Hospital Bunker #20, offers a rewarding and educational lesson on peace. Don't miss the chance to take part in a unique peace-focused learning experience—only in Haeburu.

Haeburu Cultural Center

Welcome. To a museum created by everyone.

Haeburu Cultural Center is often called a "hand-made museum." This is because many of its hand-crafted exhibits were donated by local Haeburu residents, making it a museum created by a community looking to its roots. A visit to Haeburu Cultural Center will reveal many aspects of Haeburu.

Emigration

Overseas emigration: a chapter in Okinawan history. Here, discover the trail of the passionate Haeburu spirit that spread across the world.

Whirr-clack-clack ... A town where the sound of looms echoes.

Haebaru is the home of Ryukyu Kasuri fabric weaving. But that's not all ... Haebaru Hana-ori and Hio Haebaru fabrics, along with the world-famous Akezuba fabric, were crafted by talented artisans in Haebaru's past. Haebaru truly is a place of excellence in weaving.

Vibrantly dyed, the thread is born.

Legacies of traditional divisions of labor, showcasing the art of beautiful thread-tying.

Local Walking Tour organized by Haeburu Town Tourism Association

Haeburu has 12 districts (known as "aza"), each with its own distinctive history and culture. Join local guides and coordinators and make the most of the fantastic sights all across Haeburu.

Currently available tours

[Kasuri Road Walking Tour]

Haeburu is one of Okinawa's premier textile destinations. Walk along streets adorned with Ryukyu Kasuri patterns—known as the Kasuri Road—and stop at various workshops to learn more about textiles.

[Tsukazan Town Walking Tour]

The Tsukazan area comprises three ancient districts. Here you can view structures like traditional raised storehouses and traditional wells—rare to see in Okinawa.

The area has produced many notable figures, including Tetsuo Kinjo and Tobi Asato. This tour visits places associated with them.

[Teruya Town Walking Tour]

Teruya developed along the southern slope of a gently elevated hill called a demui—a site used during the Ryukyu Kingdom era.

Its summit features stone lions and a sacred utaki site, still visited today as a place of worship. The tour also stops at a Hana-ori weaving workshop.

[Miyagusuku Town Walking Tour]

Miyagusuku, home of the legend of Hagoromo. According to local legend, a celestial maiden's hairpin lies at the bottom of the Usukuga well to this day. At the traditional house serving as a rest stop, enjoy a kamishibai (paper-theater) telling of the Hagoromo legend.

[Kanegusuku Town Walking Tour]

In the late 14th century, a local lord led his family from Shuri to the area and constructed Uchimine-aji. Explore the ruins of Uchimine-gusuku, and see the lord's tomb and the residences of clan members to learn about their history and culture.

[Kyan/Teruya Town Walking Tour]

The settlement has Koganemori at its back: Haeburu's largest and most verdant forest. Kyan is famous for its unique somintashiya, a local somen noodle dish.

[Yonaha Town Walking Tour]

Did you know that Haeburu, which doesn't face the sea, has its own Urashima Taro legend? Take a tour of Yonaha in Haeburu, a place connected to the folklore hero Urashima Taro, known as Usanshi in Okinawa.

[Miyahira Town Walking Tour]

Miyahira, where the local Yokutsuna legend still lingers. Regarded as the birthplace of education in Haeburu, Miyahira still retains the remains of a traditional Tenaraijo school and a sacred utaki site. Its traditional Shishi-mai lion dance is also very famous.

[Higashi-Arakawa Town Walking Tour]

Historic sites can be found here, including Shichara Bridge, part of a road that has survived since the Ryukyu Kingdom era, offering insight into the town's past.

[Kamizato Town Walking Tour]

This settlement—selected as one of Okinawa's Top 100 Hometowns—preserves traditional culture and fosters the spirit of community cooperation. It is also home to the distinctive traditional shisa keraishi lion dance ceremony.

[Yamagawa Town Walking Tour]

This district is characterized by thriving agriculture, scenic beauty, and a slow-paced lifestyle. Visit sites such as Nakajin-no-udun, the Agariga well, and the site where the Ufui Bridge monument was excavated.

[Ona Town Walking Tour]

This settlement (yaadui) was formed in the late modern period by samurai families who sought new lands, relocating from Sakiyama, Akata, and Torihori in Shuri. Visit Okinawan designated cultural properties such as the Mabuni Family Tomb, and explore sites like Gufunshiji/Hijaga.

[Motobu Town Walking Tour]

Motobu has preserved the unusual custom of enshrining a Buddhist altar in a community center. Stroll through this district known for its Kasuri weaving, encounter charming stone lions, and take a break at the historic Jana House.

*Tours are held regularly. Details are posted on the Tourism Association website. Group reservations are also accepted.

Haeburu Local "Aza" Walking Tours are now available.

Exploring the various districts ("aza") within Haeburu with guides and local residents can lead to many discoveries.

Haeburu: A town where stories are born

Haeburu has a rich collection of legendary stories, many of which are recorded in historical texts like the "Ryukyu-koku Yuraiki" and "Irou Setsuden." These range from familiar legends you may have heard before to uniquely distinctive tales. It's definitely worth taking a leisurely stroll to explore these legends.

Each of the 12 "aza" districts has its own leaflet!
